Response to Office Action Dated 11/10/2004

Claims:

1. (Canceled)
2. (Previously Presented) A secure gun display, comprising:
a restraint for holding a gun through a trigger guard of the gun and around a stock of the gun, wherein a curvature of the restraint comprises at least part of a non-planar spiral; and a means for securing the restraint to a secure surface.
3. (Previously Presented) A secure gun display, comprising:
a restraint for holding a gun through a trigger guard of the gun and around a stock of the gun, wherein a curvature of the restraint comprises at least part of a helix; and a means for securing the restraint to a secure surface.
4. (Previously Presented) A secure gun display, comprising:
a restraint for holding a gun through a trigger guard of the gun and around a stock of the gun, wherein a curvature of the restraint corkscrews through three dimensions; and
a means for securing the restraint to a secure surface.
5. (Previously Presented) A secure gun display, comprising:

a restraint for holding a gun through a trigger guard of the gun and around a stock of the gun, wherein a curvature of the restraint corkscrews through three dimensions comprising a curve in a 3-dimensional axis system along a first axis that changes direction to a second axis that changes direction to a third axis; and a means for securing the restraint to a secure surface.

6-10. (Canceled)

11. (Previously Presented) A restraint for securing a gun, comprising:

a member to hold a gun through a trigger guard of the gun and around a stock of the gun, wherein the member includes fasteners to secure the member to a secure surface and wherein a curvature of the member comprises at least part of a non-planar spiral.

12. (Previously Presented) A restraint for securing a gun, comprising:

a member to hold a gun through a trigger guard of the gun and around a stock of the gun, wherein the member includes fasteners to secure the member to a secure surface and wherein a curvature of the member comprises at least part of a helix.

13. (Previously Presented) A restraint for securing a gun, comprising:
a member to hold a gun through a trigger guard of the gun and around a stock of the gun, wherein the member includes fasteners to secure the member to a secure surface and wherein a curvature of the member corkscrews through three dimensions.

14. (Previsouly Presented) A restraint for securing a gun, comprising:
a member to hold a gun through a trigger guard of the gun and around a stock of the gun, wherein the member includes fasteners to secure the member to a secure surface and wherein a curvature of the member corkscrews through three dimensions comprising a curve in a 3-dimensional axis system along a first axis that changes direction to a second axis that changes direction to a third axis.

15-20. (Canceled)
